

Mark 5:12

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And all the devils besought him, saying, Send us into the swine, that we may enter into them.

Analysis

All the demons 'besought him, saying, Send us into the swine, that we may enter into them.' The demons couldn't act without permission—showing their subjection to Christ. They preferred pig possession to disembodiment, revealing spiritual desperation. The request 'Send us' (Πέμψον ἡμᾶς) shows they needed authorization. Why did Jesus grant this?

1. Demonstrated demons' destructive nature
2. Validated exorcism publicly—visible evidence of liberation
3. Revealed demons' preferred embodiment over homelessness.

Jesus permitted evil's temporary expression to accomplish greater good—the man's liberation and public testimony.

Historical Context

Ancient understanding recognized demons sought embodiment. Jewish tradition held that disembodied demons wandered seeking rest (Matthew 12:43-45). Pigs, being unclean animals in Jewish thought, might be 'appropriate' demonic habitation from demons' perspective. Jesus' permission demonstrates sovereign control—He determines evil's boundaries. The visible, public exorcism provided undeniable evidence of liberation. Ancient worldviews—Jewish and pagan—would understand this transaction. Early church recognized Jesus' absolute authority over demons, including permitting temporary activity for greater redemptive purposes.
