

Mark 5:22

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And, behold, there cometh one of the rulers of the synagogue,
Jairus by name; and when he saw him, he fell at his feet,

Analysis

Jairus, 'one of the rulers of the synagogue,' came and 'fell at his feet.' The phrase 'rulers of the synagogue' (ἀρχισυναγώγων) indicates official position—responsible for synagogue order, service arrangements, and administration. Despite his status, Jairus humbled himself, falling at Jesus' feet in desperate supplication. This demonstrates that crisis drives pride aside—social position and theological reservations vanish when loved ones face death. The synagogue ruler approaching Jesus publicly shows faith overcoming potential criticism from religious establishment. Desperate need produces humble faith.

Historical Context

Synagogue rulers were respected community leaders, often educated and wealthy. Their position involved organizing worship, selecting readers and teachers, maintaining order. Jairus risked much by publicly approaching Jesus—scribes and Pharisees opposed Jesus, and synagogue rulers generally aligned with establishment. His public approach showed desperation and faith. Falling at Jesus' feet was posture of supplication and honor, acknowledging Jesus' superior authority. Ancient Mediterranean honor-shame culture made such public humility significant—powerful person submitting to controversial teacher. Early church emphasized that genuine faith transcends social barriers and religious politics.
