

Mark 6:56

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And whithersoever he entered, into villages, or cities, or country, they laid the sick in the streets, and besought him that they might touch if it were but the border of his garment: and as many as touched him were made whole.

Analysis

And whithersoever he entered, into villages, or cities, or country, they laid the sick in the streets, and besought him that they might touch if it were but the border of his garment: and as many as touched him were made whole. Wherever Jesus went—'villages, cities, or country'—people 'laid the sick in the streets' (marketplaces, ἀγοράς, agoras). They 'besought him that they might touch... the border of his garment.' This echoed the hemorrhaging woman's faith (Mark 5:27-28). 'As many as touched him were made whole' (ὅσοι αὐτὸν ἥψαντο αὐτοῦ ἐσώζοντο, hosoi an hēpsanto autou esōzonto)—universal healing, none disappointed. This demonstrates Christ's unlimited healing power and compassionate availability.

Historical Context

The 'border of his garment' (κρασπέδου τοῦ ἱματίου αὐτοῦ, kraspedou tou himatiou autou) referred to tassels (tzitzit) Jewish men wore per Numbers 15:38-39. These had become focus of faith, though Jesus' person was the source. Ancient marketplaces (agoras) were public spaces where sick could be placed for visibility. The mass healings' public nature created numerous witnesses, making later denial difficult. Early church saw this as fulfillment of Isaiah 53:5: 'by his stripes we are healed.'
