

Matthew 10:1

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And when he had called unto him his twelve disciples, he gave them power against unclean spirits, to cast them out, and to heal all manner of sickness and all manner of disease.

Analysis

Jesus' calling 'his twelve disciples' shows intentional selection and training before commissioning. Giving them 'power against unclean spirits, to cast them out, and to heal all manner of sickness' demonstrates delegated authority—they would minister in His name and power. This commissioning shows the kingdom advancing through multiplication of workers, not Jesus working alone. Their authority was both spiritual (demons) and physical (disease).

Historical Context

The Twelve had followed Jesus for months, observing His ministry. Now He sends them to replicate it. This pattern (training then commissioning) models leadership development. The authority given was real but derived—effective only as they remained connected to Jesus.
