

Matthew 10:31

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Fear ye not therefore, ye are of more value than many sparrows.

Analysis

Jesus concludes the argument: 'Fear ye not therefore, ye are of more value than many sparrows' (Greek: μὴ οὖν φοβεῖσθε· πολλῶν στρουθίων διαφέρετε ὑμεῖς, 'do not fear therefore; you are of more value than many sparrows'). 'Therefore' (οὖν) draws conclusion from verses 29-30. The verb διαφέρω means 'differ, excel, surpass in value.' If God cares for worthless sparrows and knows trivial details, disciples can trust Him through persecution. The command 'fear not' appears repeatedly in this context (verses 26, 28, 31) - right fear of God (verse 28) eliminates wrong fear of circumstances. This is argument from lesser to greater about God's faithful care.

Historical Context

First-century disciples faced real threats - arrest, flogging, execution. Jesus doesn't deny danger but reframes it within God's providential care. The value argument echoes Genesis 1:26-28 where humans are made in God's image, given dominion over creation including birds. Early Christian courage in persecution testified to internalization of this teaching. Martyrs like Stephen, James, and countless others demonstrated fearless witness rooted in trust in God's sovereign care and eternal perspective.
