

Matthew 10:39

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

He that findeth his life shall lose it: and he that loseth his life for my sake shall find it.

Analysis

Jesus' paradox 'He that findeth his life shall lose it: and he that loseth his life for my sake shall find it' expresses the kingdom's upside-down economics. Attempting to preserve earthly life, comfort, and safety results in losing eternal life. Sacrificing earthly life for Christ results in finding true, abundant, eternal life. This is the cross-and-resurrection pattern—death leads to life. Self-preservation leads to loss; self-sacrifice leads to gain.

Historical Context

The Greek word 'life' (psychē) means soul/life—both physical existence and essential self. Jesus teaches that clinging to temporal security costs eternal security, while releasing temporal life secures eternal life. This challenges all self-protective, self-centered living.
