

Matthew 10:8

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Heal the sick, cleanse the lepers, raise the dead, cast out devils: freely ye have received, freely give.

Analysis

The command 'Heal the sick, cleanse the lepers, raise the dead, cast out devils' commissions the disciples to do what they had seen Jesus do. The list moves from lesser to greater miracles, demonstrating kingdom authority over disease, uncleanness, death, and demons—reversing the curse. The principle 'freely ye have received, freely give' establishes grace-based ministry. They received authority as gift, not achievement, so must minister without charging for spiritual service.

Historical Context

These miracles authenticated the gospel message as from God. The 'freely received, freely give' principle doesn't forbid ministers receiving support (1 Corinthians 9:14) but prohibits selling spiritual gifts or making ministry a business. The gospel is grace, not transaction.
