

Matthew 16:21

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

From that time forth began Jesus to shew unto his disciples, how that he must go unto Jerusalem, and suffer many things of the elders and chief priests and scribes, and be killed, and be raised again the third day.

Analysis

Jesus begins revealing His approaching suffering, death, and resurrection—core gospel events. The phrase 'began to shew' indicates this teaching continues through the Gospels. Reformed soteriology emphasizes the necessity of Christ's suffering: God's justice required payment for sin, accomplished through the cross. Jesus 'must' (Greek 'dei'—divine necessity) suffer because God's redemptive plan demanded it. The mention of resurrection shows death isn't defeat but the path to victory over sin and death.

Historical Context

This teaching shocked disciples expecting a conquering Messiah, not a suffering servant. Jesus mentions Jerusalem (where prophets died), elders/chief priests/scribes (Sanhedrin leadership), and being killed—details fulfilled in the Passion narrative. The third-day resurrection reference points to Hosea 6:2 and establishes the timeline. This is Jesus' first Passion prediction in Matthew.
