

Matthew 16:27

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

For the Son of man shall come in the glory of his Father with his angels; and then he shall reward every man according to his works.

Analysis

For the Son of man shall come in the glory of his Father with his angels (μέλλει γὰρ ὁ νιὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου ἔρχεσθαι ἐν τῇ δόξῃ τοῦ πατρὸς αὐτοῦ μετὰ τῶν ἀγγέλων αὐτοῦ)—The future μέλλει ἔρχεσθαι ('is about to come') declares certain future reality. Jesus identifies Himself as 'the Son of Man' (ὁ νιὸς τοῦ ἀνθρώπου), the Danielic figure who receives eternal dominion (Daniel 7:13-14). Coming ἐν τῇ δόξῃ ('in the glory') shows His second coming will be radically different from His first—not humble obscurity but radiant majesty. He comes μετὰ τῶν ἀγγέλων αὐτοῦ ('with His angels'), demonstrating sovereign command over angelic hosts.

And then he shall reward every man according to his works (καὶ τότε ἀποδώσει ἐκάστῳ κατὰ τὴν πρᾶξιν αὐτοῦ)—The verb ἀποδίδωμι (apodidōmi, 'to give back, to render, to recompense') indicates just recompense. Each (ἐκαστος) individual receives reward κατὰ τὴν πρᾶξιν ('according to the practice/deed'). This isn't salvation by works but reward according to works (1 Corinthians 3:12-15; 2 Corinthians 5:10). Christians are saved by grace through faith but judged for rewards based on faithful stewardship.

Historical Context

This teaching follows Peter's confession (16:16) and Jesus's first passion prediction (16:21). Jesus juxtaposes His coming suffering with His future glory—He will be rejected, killed, and raised, but ultimately return as Judge. This pattern (humiliation then exaltation) defines not only Christ's path but all faithful disciples (16:24-26). The early church lived in expectation of Christ's return, shaping ethics around accountability at His coming (1 Thessalonians 4:13-18).
