

Matthew 19:28

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And Jesus said unto them, Verily I say unto you, That ye which have followed me, in the regeneration when the Son of man shall sit in the throne of his glory, ye also shall sit upon twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel.

Analysis

Peter's statement 'we have forsaken all, and followed thee' is both true and somewhat self-congratulatory. Jesus' response (19:28-30) promises reward for faithful disciples while warning against mercenary motivation. The phrase 'in the regeneration' (Greek 'palingenesia'—new birth, renewal) refers to the new creation when Christ returns. Reformed eschatology sees believers reigning with Christ in the renewed earth. This verse shows discipleship costs everything but receives abundantly more in return.

Historical Context

The Twelve had literally left occupations, families, and security to follow Jesus. Peter's reminder isn't entirely wrong—they had sacrificed much. Jesus acknowledges this while pointing to future reward in the messianic kingdom. 'Sitting on twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel' (19:28) indicates apostolic authority in the eschatological kingdom, fulfilled partially in church leadership, ultimately in new creation.
