

Matthew 19:29

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And every one that hath forsaken houses, or brethren, or sisters, or father, or mother, or wife, or children, or lands, for my name's sake, shall receive an hundredfold, and shall inherit everlasting life.

Analysis

Jesus promises that everyone who forsakes family or property 'for my name's sake' will receive 'an hundredfold, and shall inherit everlasting life.' This demonstrates kingdom economics—giving up earthly treasures for Christ yields infinite return. The 'hundredfold' blessing includes spiritual family (the church community) and eternal life. Reformed theology sees here the principle that God cannot be outgiven—sacrifices for Christ are investments with eternal dividends. The motivation must be 'for my name's sake,' not personal gain.

Historical Context

First-century disciples literally left family businesses, inheritance rights, and social security to follow Jesus. This cost was immense in kinship-based Mediterranean culture. Jesus promises restoration in church family and future kingdom. Early Christians experienced this, finding community support exceeding biological family ties. Persecution often meant literal loss of family and property.
