

Matthew 2:10

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

When they saw the star, they rejoiced with exceeding great joy.

Analysis

The magi's 'exceeding great joy' at finding Christ demonstrates the proper response to divine revelation. Their journey, likely months long across hundreds of miles, shows persevering faith that endures hardship to reach Christ. This contrasts sharply with Jerusalem's religious leaders who had Scripture but lacked desire to walk five miles to Bethlehem to see the Messiah.

Historical Context

Ancient travel was arduous and dangerous, requiring significant investment of time and resources. The magi's willingness to make this journey based on a star demonstrates remarkable faith and determination to find the promised King.
