

Matthew 21:13

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And said unto them, It is written, My house shall be called the house of prayer; but ye have made it a den of thieves.

Analysis

Jesus' rebuke 'It is written, My house shall be called the house of prayer; but ye have made it a den of thieves' combines Isaiah 56:7 and Jeremiah 7:11, condemning the temple's corruption. God intended the temple as a place of prayer (worship, communion with God); instead, it became a marketplace where money-changers and merchants extorted worshipers. 'Den of thieves' means a hideout where robbers retreat—the religious establishment used God's house for profit while maintaining external piety.

Historical Context

The temple's outer court (Court of Gentiles) was designated for Gentile worship—filling it with commercial activity excluded Gentiles from prayer space. Money-changers exchanged Roman coins (bearing Caesar's image, considered idolatrous) for temple currency at exorbitant rates. Jesus' cleansing asserted His authority over the temple and its worship.
