

Matthew 21:17

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And he left them, and went out of the city into Bethany; and he lodged there.

Analysis

He left them, and went out of the city into Bethany; and he lodged there—After confrontation with religious authorities, Jesus withdrew (ἐξῆλθεν, exēlthen) to Bethany, home of Mary, Martha, and Lazarus (John 11:1). He lodged there (ἐυλίσθη, ēulisthē) suggests regular nightly retreat from hostile Jerusalem.

Jesus's strategic withdrawal illustrates wisdom: He didn't court martyrdom prematurely but waited for the Father's appointed hour (John 7:6). Bethany ('house of affliction' or 'house of figs') became His refuge, foreshadowing the next morning's fig tree encounter (v.18-19). Even the Son of God needed fellowship and rest among friends.

Historical Context

Bethany lay about two miles east of Jerusalem on the Mount of Olives' eastern slope—beyond the Sabbath day's journey but close enough for daily teaching. Pilgrims typically camped outside Jerusalem during Passover due to overcrowding. Jesus's Bethany retreats fulfilled this custom while avoiding arrest before God's timing.
