

Matthew 22:29

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Jesus answered and said unto them, Ye do err, not knowing the scriptures, nor the power of God.

Analysis

Jesus' response 'Ye do err, not knowing the scriptures, nor the power of God' identifies two sources of theological error: scriptural ignorance and underestimating God's power. The Sadducees' question about resurrection (vv. 23-28) revealed both problems—they didn't understand Scripture's teaching on resurrection or God's power to accomplish it. Doctrinal error stems from biblical illiteracy and limiting God to human understanding. Truth requires both scriptural knowledge and faith in God's omnipotence.

Historical Context

The Sadducees rejected resurrection, afterlife, angels, and spirits—accepting only the Torah (first five books). Their hypothetical scenario about seven brothers marrying one woman (based on Deuteronomy 25:5-6) attempted to make resurrection seem absurd. Jesus refutes them by demonstrating their misunderstanding of Scripture and divine power.
