

Matthew 23:1

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Then spake Jesus to the multitude, and to his disciples,

Analysis

---

Then spake Jesus to the multitude, and to his disciples—the Greek verb elalēsen (ἐλάλησεν) indicates a formal, authoritative discourse. This transitional verse introduces Jesus's most searing public denunciation of religious hypocrisy, delivered not privately but before ochlos (ὄχλος, the crowds) and mathētais (μαθηταῖς, disciples). The dual audience is strategic: Jesus warns believers while unmasking the scribes and Pharisees' corruption before those they misled.

This discourse (Matthew 23:1-39) represents Jesus's final public teaching before the Passion narrative, positioned immediately after His silencing of the religious leaders in debate (Matthew 21-22). The timing underscores the irrevocable breach between Jesus and the Temple establishment—they will respond by crucifying Him within days.

Historical Context

---

This address occurred during Passion Week (Tuesday, April AD 30) in the Temple courts, where Jesus had been teaching daily. The scribes (Torah scholars) and Pharisees (lay religious party emphasizing oral tradition) held immense social and religious authority, though they lacked the Sadducees' political power.

Related Passages

---

John 15:13 — Greatest form of love

1 Corinthians 13:4 — Characteristics of love

Romans 2:1 — Judging others

Revelation 20:12 — Judgment according to deeds

Study Questions

---

1. Why does Jesus deliver this harsh critique publicly rather than privately correcting the leaders?
2. How does addressing both crowds and disciples simultaneously serve different purposes?
3. What does Jesus's willingness to confront powerful religious authorities teach about prophetic courage?

Interlinear Text

---

Τότε	ὁ	Ἰησοῦς	ἐλάλησεν	τοῖς	ὄχλοις	καὶ	τοῖς
Then	G3588	Jesus	spake	G3588	to the multitude	and	G3588
G5119		G2424	G2980		G3793	G2532
μαθηταῖς	αὐτοῦ
disciples	G846
G3101

Additional Cross-References

---

Luke 12:1 (Parallel theme): In the mean time, when there were gathered together an innumerable multitude of people, insomuch that they trode one upon another, he began to say unto his disciples first of all, Beware ye of the leaven of the Pharisees, which is hypocrisy.

Luke 12:57 (Parallel theme): Yea, and why even of yourselves judge ye not what is right?