

Matthew 24:1

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And Jesus went out, and departed from the temple: and his disciples came to him for to shew him the buildings of the temple.

Analysis

And Jesus went out, and departed from the temple (ἐξῆλθεν ἀπὸ τοῦ ἱεροῦ)—Jesus's final departure from the temple marks a theological watershed. His leaving (ἐξέρχομαι, exerchomai) signals divine abandonment, echoing how God's glory departed from Solomon's temple (Ezekiel 10). When the disciples point to the buildings of the temple (τὰς οἰκοδομὰς τοῦ ἱεροῦ), they're marveling at Herod's renovations—massive white limestone blocks, some weighing 100 tons, overlaid with gold plates that blazed in the sun.

This sets the stage for the Olivet Discourse, delivered on the Mount of Olives overlooking the temple complex. The disciples' architectural admiration contrasts sharply with Jesus's prophecy of total destruction, creating dramatic irony that underscores the insufficiency of external religious magnificence without the presence of God.

Historical Context

Herod the Great began renovating the Second Temple in 20 BC, and construction continued until AD 64—just six years before its destruction. The temple complex covered 35 acres with porticoes, courts, and the sanctuary proper. Josephus describes stones 67 feet long, 7.5 feet high, and 9 feet wide. Jesus spoke these words during Passion Week, likely Tuesday afternoon, AD 30 or 33.
