

Matthew 25:32

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And before him shall be gathered all nations: and he shall separate them one from another, as a shepherd divideth his sheep from the goats:

Analysis

Before him shall be gathered all nations (πάντα τὰ ἔθνη, panta ta ethnē)—the universal scope of final judgment encompasses every people group, not just Israel. The Greek ethne emphasizes Gentile inclusion in Christ's eschatological tribunal.

As a shepherd divideth his sheep from the goats (ὥσπερ ὁ ποιμὴν ἀφορίζει, hōsper ho poimēn aphorizei)—The verb aphorizei means to mark off boundaries, to separate decisively. In Palestinian shepherding, sheep and goats often grazed together but were separated at night; sheep (more valuable, docile) received shelter, while goats (hardier) stayed outside. This agricultural image depicts irreversible eternal division.

Historical Context

Jesus delivered this Olivet Discourse teaching (Matthew 24-25) during Passion Week, days before His crucifixion. First-century Palestinian shepherds commonly managed mixed flocks, making this imagery immediately recognizable. The judgment scene echoes Daniel 7:13-14 (Son of Man receiving dominion) and Joel 3:2 (nations gathered for judgment).

Study Questions

1. How does the universality of judgment ('all nations') challenge nationalistic or tribal understandings of salvation?
2. What does the shepherd's decisive separation reveal about the finality of God's judgment?
3. In what ways does genuine faith manifest itself in actions that align with Christ's kingdom values?
