

Matthew 26:2

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Ye know that after two days is the feast of the passover, and the Son of man is betrayed to be crucified.

Analysis

After two days is the feast of the passover (Greek: pascha, πάσχα)—Jesus precisely knows the divine timetable. The Passover commemorated Israel's deliverance from Egypt (Exodus 12), when the lamb's blood on doorposts spared the firstborn. Now the true Passover Lamb will be slain.

The Son of man is betrayed to be crucified—The Greek paradidotai (παράδιδотαι) means 'handed over' or 'delivered up,' the same word used of God giving up His Son (Romans 8:32). Jesus uses His messianic title 'Son of man' (Daniel 7:13-14) while predicting crucifixion, Rome's method for executing slaves and rebels—the ultimate humiliation for Israel's King.

Historical Context

Passover (Nisan 14-15) was one of three pilgrim festivals requiring Jewish males to travel to Jerusalem. The city swelled from 50,000 to over 250,000 people. Jesus's prediction combines Jewish betrayal with Roman execution—both powers would collaborate in killing the Messiah.
