

Matthew 27:28

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And they stripped him, and put on him a scarlet robe.

Analysis

They stripped him (ἐκδύσαντες, ekdysantes)—complete public humiliation, exposing Jesus naked before soldiers. A scarlet robe (χλαμύδα κοκκίνην, chlamyda kokkinēn)—a military cloak, likely a worn-out soldier's cape, mimicking royal purple.

This stripping fulfills Psalm 22:18 (they part my garments among them) and anticipates the permanent stripping of his seamless tunic (John 19:23-24). The scarlet robe parodies royal investiture while ironically pointing to Isaiah 1:18 (though your sins be as scarlet)—Jesus bears our crimson guilt.

Historical Context

Roman crucifixion was designed for maximum shame. Victims were crucified naked to strip away human dignity. The scarlet military cloak (chlamys) was common among Roman soldiers, easily appropriated for mockery.
