

Matthew 27:42

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

He saved others; himself he cannot save. If he be the King of Israel, let him now come down from the cross, and we will believe him.

Analysis

---

He saved others; himself he cannot save—the mockers speak prophetic truth. Cannot (οὐ δύναται, ou dynatai) is theologically accurate: Jesus cannot save himself AND save us. The Sinless One must die for the sinful. If he be the King of Israel, let him now come down from the cross, and we will believe him—a lying condition. They would not believe.

The great reversal: perceived weakness is actual power. The foolishness of God is wiser than men; and the weakness of God is stronger than men (1 Corinthians 1:25). The cross appears as defeat but is victory. Staying on the cross demonstrates greater power than coming down.

Historical Context

Roman crucifixion was designed to make the victim appear utterly powerless—naked, suspended, gasping for breath. That the King of Israel would die this shameful death was 'foolishness to Greeks' and 'stumbling block to Jews' (1 Corinthians 1:23).

Study Questions

1. How does the phrase 'He saved others; himself he cannot save' express the heart of substitutionary atonement?
2. Why is the cross a greater demonstration of power than any miracle of deliverance would have been?
