

Matthew 27:45

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Now from the sixth hour there was darkness over all the land unto the ninth hour.

Analysis

---

Now from the sixth hour there was darkness over all the land unto the ninth hour—From noon to 3 PM, supernatural darkness (σκότος, skotos) enveloped the land (γῆ, gē), likely Judea though possibly wider. This was not a solar eclipse (impossible during Passover's full moon) but divine intervention marking cosmic horror at God's wrath being poured out on His Son.

The sixth hour was when the daily sacrifice began; the ninth hour when it ended—Christ's death brackets the sacrificial hours, fulfilling what the lambs foreshadowed. The darkness echoes Exodus 10:21-23 (plague on Egypt) and Amos 8:9-10 ('I will darken the earth in the clear day...I will make it as the mourning of an only son'). God the Father veiled creation's eyes from the Son's unspeakable suffering as He became sin for us (2 Corinthians 5:21).

Historical Context

Darkness at noon was recorded by several ancient historians. Thallus (c. AD 52) mentioned unusual darkness at this time, which Julius Africanus (c. AD 221) connected to Christ's crucifixion. Crucifixions typically occurred in public view, but this supernatural darkness emphasized the cosmic significance—not merely a man dying, but the Creator bearing divine judgment.

Study Questions

1. Why would God darken the earth during His Son's atoning sacrifice rather than illuminating it?
2. How does the three-hour period mirror Jesus's three days in the tomb, and what does this pattern reveal about resurrection hope?
