

Matthew 5:20

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

For I say unto you, That except your righteousness shall exceed the righteousness of the scribes and Pharisees, ye shall in no case enter into the kingdom of heaven.

Analysis

The shocking statement that righteousness must exceed that of the scribes and Pharisees—the most religious people—reveals that external conformity is insufficient. True righteousness comes from the heart, not mere behavioral compliance. This verse introduces the deeper interpretation of the Law that follows.

Historical Context

Scribes and Pharisees were considered the pinnacle of righteousness in first-century Judaism. They meticulously kept detailed laws and traditions. Jesus's audience would have been stunned to hear their righteousness was inadequate for the Kingdom.
