

Matthew 5:44

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

But I say unto you, Love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, and pray for them which despitefully use you, and persecute you;

Analysis

Jesus commands the radical ethic: 'Love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, and pray for them which despitefully use you, and persecute you' (Greek: ἀγαπᾶτε τοὺς ἔχθροὺς ὑμῶν, 'love your enemies'). The verb ἀγαπᾶτε is not emotional affection but volitional commitment to another's good. Four progressive actions are commanded: love (internal disposition), bless (speak well of), do good (act beneficially), pray (intercede for). This overturns natural justice and exceeds Old Testament lex talionis (eye for eye). Such love is supernatural, impossible without divine transformation.

Historical Context

In Roman-occupied Palestine with Zealot revolutionaries advocating violent resistance, Jesus' command was scandalously countercultural. Jewish interpretation of Leviticus 19:18 ('love your neighbor') debated who qualified as neighbor - often excluding Gentiles and enemies. Qumran community rule explicitly commanded hating 'sons of darkness.' Jesus demolishes these boundaries, commanding universal love that mirrors God's indiscriminate grace (5:45). This teaching later shaped Christian pacifism and enemy-love traditions.
