

Matthew 7:2

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

For with what judgment ye judge, ye shall be judged: and with what measure ye mete, it shall be measured to you again.

Analysis

The principle of reciprocal judgment warns that how we judge others sets the standard by which we'll be judged. Harsh, merciless judgment invites harsh judgment in return. This isn't earning salvation by works but describes how God's justice responds to hypocritical condemners who lack mercy while demanding it for themselves.

Historical Context

Jewish teaching included similar proverbs about reciprocal justice. Jesus applies this to judgmental attitudes within the community. Paul echoes this in Romans 2:1 —those who judge others condemn themselves for doing the same things.

Study Questions

1. What standard of judgment do you apply to others that you'd not want applied to yourself?
2. How can you develop merciful judgment that still upholds truth and righteousness?
