

Matthew 8:3

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And Jesus put forth his hand, and touched him, saying, I will; be thou clean. And immediately his leprosy was cleansed.

Analysis

Jesus' physical touch—'Jesus put forth his hand, and touched him'—was revolutionary because touching a leper brought ceremonial defilement. Instead of Jesus becoming unclean, His touch cleansed the leper. The immediate healing ('immediately his leprosy was cleansed') demonstrates Jesus' absolute authority over disease and uncleanness. Jesus' 'I will; be thou clean' combines sovereign will with powerful word.

Historical Context

No one touched lepers—physicians examined from a distance. Jesus' touch communicated compassion, acceptance, and restoration before the healing. His willingness to touch demonstrates God's love for outcasts and His power to cleanse sin's defilement without being contaminated.

1. How does Jesus' willingness to touch the untouchable change your view of His love?
2. Who are the 'lepers' God is calling you to touch with His love?
