

Matthew 9:36

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

But when he saw the multitudes, he was moved with compassion on them, because they fainted, and were scattered abroad, as sheep having no shepherd.

Analysis

Jesus' response to the crowds: 'he was moved with compassion on them, because they fainted, and were scattered abroad, as sheep having no shepherd' (εσπλαγχνισθη περι αυτων οτι ησαν εσκυλμενοι και ερριμμενοι ωσει προβατα μη εχοντα ποιμενα). 'Moved with compassion' (εσπλαγχνισθη) describes gut-level, visceral emotional response—feeling in the depths of one's being. Jesus sees beyond individual needs to systemic spiritual crisis. 'Fainted' (εσκυλμενοι) means harassed, troubled, weary. 'Scattered abroad' (ερριμμενοι) means thrown down, helpless. The sheep metaphor evokes Old Testament imagery of Israel as God's flock and leaders as shepherds who often failed their trust (Ezekiel 34, Zechariah 10:2). Jesus sees Israel's spiritual leaders have failed—the sheep are harassed, helpless, without true guidance. His compassion leads to mission: providing the shepherding Israel desperately needs.

Historical Context

Shepherding metaphor was central to Israelite understanding of leadership. God is Shepherd (Psalm 23), as is the Messiah (Ezekiel 34:23). Jewish leaders—priests, scribes, Pharisees—were supposed to shepherd Israel but had become oppressive rather than caring. Heavy legal burdens, emphasis on external conformity, and neglect of mercy left the people spiritually exhausted. Jesus' description echoes Ezekiel 34, where God condemns false shepherds and promises to shepherd His people Himself. Jesus fulfills this promise as the Good Shepherd (John 10:11).
