

Numbers 1:33

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Those that were numbered of them, even of the tribe of Ephraim, were forty thousand and five hundred.

Analysis

Ephraim's 40,500 warriors represented the beginning of the tribe's rise to prominence in Israel's northern territories. The specific number demonstrates God's providential preparation of this tribe for leadership, despite human expectations based on birth order. The census serves not merely as administrative record-keeping but as evidence of God's sovereign orchestration of tribal strengths according to His redemptive purposes.

Historical Context

Ephraim's territory in the central highlands included Shiloh, where the tabernacle would rest for centuries, giving the tribe spiritual significance. The tribe's central location and religious importance contributed to its later political prominence.
