

Numbers 14:19

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Pardon, I beseech thee, the iniquity of this people according unto the greatness of thy mercy, and as thou hast forgiven this people, from Egypt even until now.

Analysis

---

Moses grounds his plea for mercy in God's revealed character: 'longsuffering, and of great mercy, forgiving iniquity and transgression.' This appeal to divine attributes demonstrates that God's nature itself provides grounds for hope even after severe sin. God's mercy is not arbitrary but flows from His essential character.

Historical Context

Moses' words echo God's self-revelation after the golden calf incident (Exodus 34:6-7), showing that past demonstrations of mercy create a foundation for present petitions. God's character remains constant; His past forgiveness becomes grounds for confidence in present appeals.
