

Numbers 15:40

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

That ye may remember, and do all my commandments, and be holy unto your God.

Analysis

God commands: 'That ye may remember, and do all my commandments, and be holy unto your God.' The Hebrew 'zakar' (remember) isn't mere mental recall but active remembrance that produces obedience. The purpose is holiness - separation unto God. The preceding verses commanded tassels with blue ribbons on garments (v.38-39) as visible reminders of God's commands. This illustrates that humans need tangible helps for spiritual remembrance. The New Testament provides baptism and the Lord's Supper as remembrance ordinances (Luke 22:19, Rom 6:3-4). Holiness flows from remembering God's redemption and commands, maintaining consecration through constant mindfulness.

Historical Context

The tassel command (tzitzit in Hebrew) continues among observant Jews today. The blue thread's rarity and expense (dyed from murex snail secretion) made it precious, symbolizing royalty and divinity. The tassels' visibility on garments' corners reminded wearers constantly of God's law. Jesus wore these tassels (Matt 9:20, 14:36, 23:5), fulfilling the Law while condemning ostentatious enlargement for display. The practice demonstrates that physical reminders aid spiritual discipline - though New Testament Christians aren't bound to specific Old Testament symbols, we need reminders (Scripture memory, worship, sacraments) to maintain holy living.
