

Numbers 21:7

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Therefore the people came to Moses, and said, We have sinned, for we have spoken against the LORD, and against thee; pray unto the LORD, that he take away the serpents from us. And Moses prayed for the people.

Analysis

Israel confessed 'We have sinned, for we have spoken against the LORD, and against thee' to Moses, requesting his intercession. This acknowledgment of sin against both God and His servant demonstrated genuine repentance. Their request 'pray unto the LORD, that he take away the serpents' sought removal of consequences, yet God's answer provided healing while serpents remained, teaching that forgiveness doesn't always eliminate earthly consequences.

Historical Context

This confession marked a more mature response than earlier rebellions, where Israel blamed Moses rather than acknowledging sin. Moses' immediate intercession demonstrated faithful shepherd-heart despite decades of complaints against him.

Study Questions

1. How does genuine repentance acknowledge sin against both God and people we've wronged?
2. Why might God forgive sin while allowing consequences to remain as ongoing lessons?
