

Numbers 22:11

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Behold, there is a people come out of Egypt, which covereth the face of the earth: come now, curse me them; peradventure I shall be able to overcome them, and drive them out.

Analysis

God's command 'Thou shalt not go with them; thou shalt not curse the people: for they are blessed' establishes clear divine prohibition. The Hebrew doubled negatives (lo telekh...lo ta'or—not go...not curse) emphasize absolute prohibition. The reason—'for they are blessed' (barukh hu)—reveals that Israel's blessed status makes them immune to cursing. This demonstrates the doctrine of eternal security from a corporate perspective: whom God blesses cannot be cursed (Romans 8:31-39). Balaam's later attempts to find loopholes reveal persistent rebellion against clear divine command.

Historical Context

God's blessing on Israel traced back to Abraham: 'I will bless them that bless thee, and curse him that curseth thee' (Genesis 12:3). Balak's attempt to curse Israel brought him under this covenant curse. God's protection of Israel was not merely military but spiritual—He would not permit spiritual weapons to succeed where physical weapons had failed. This established that Israel's enemies faced not just human opposition but God Himself.
