

Numbers 26:54

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

To many thou shalt give the more inheritance, and to few thou shalt give the less inheritance: to every one shall his inheritance be given according to those that were numbered of him.

Analysis

The repeated emphasis on proportional distribution—'according to those that were numbered of him shall his inheritance be given'—demonstrates that God's allocation is based on actual circumstances, not arbitrary preference. The census provided objective data for fair distribution. This teaches that God's providence operates through means, not apart from them. The Reformed doctrine of divine concurrence—God works through natural processes while sovereignly directing outcomes—is illustrated. The lot determined location; the census determined size.

Historical Context

The specific verse numbers from the census determined exactly how much land each tribe received. This objective standard prevented favoritism and provided transparent, verifiable justice. Future disputes could be resolved by reference to the census and lot, not by subjective claims or political maneuvering.

Study Questions

1. How does God's use of means (census and lot) teach about providence working through natural processes?
2. What does objective standard-setting prevent in terms of favoritism and corruption?
3. In what ways should church decisions be based on transparent, verifiable information?
