

Numbers 28:2

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Command the children of Israel, and say unto them, My offering, and my bread for my sacrifices made by fire, for a sweet savour unto me, shall ye observe to offer unto me in their due season.

Analysis

God commands Israel to observe 'my offering, and my bread for my sacrifices made by fire' at their appointed seasons. The Hebrew 'qorban' (offering) and 'lechem' (bread) emphasize that sacrifices are God's food - anthropomorphic language showing God delights in His people's worship, not that He needs sustenance. The phrase 'sweet savour' (reiach nichoach) appears throughout, meaning a soothing aroma pleasing to God. These offerings foreshadow Christ, the true Bread from heaven (John 6:35) who offered Himself as a fragrant offering to God (Eph 5:2).

Historical Context

Given near the end of Israel's wilderness wanderings as they prepared to enter Canaan, these instructions ensure worship continuity in the Promised Land. The detailed regulations (daily, weekly, monthly, and yearly offerings) would structure Israel's entire calendar around worship, making every day, week, and season point to God's provision and their dependence on Him.
