

Numbers 3:26

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And the hangings of the court, and the curtain for the door of the court, which is by the tabernacle, and by the altar round about, and the cords of it for all the service thereof.

Analysis

The Gershonites' responsibility for the tabernacle courtyard hangings and gate emphasizes the importance of maintaining proper boundaries around sacred space. The courtyard separated common space from holy space, teaching Israel that approaching God required recognition of His transcendent holiness. Every cord and pin served a purpose in maintaining the structure's integrity, illustrating how seemingly minor faithful service matters in God's kingdom. No task in service of God's house is insignificant.

Historical Context

The courtyard hangings created a 100 cubit by 50 cubit enclosure (Exodus 27:9-18) using fine twisted linen suspended from bronze and silver pillars. This visible boundary reminded Israel that God was both accessible (having a dwelling among them) and holy (requiring proper approach through the priesthood and sacrifices). The east gate faced the sunrise, symbolizing God as the source of light and life.
