

Numbers 33:3

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And they departed from Rameses in the first month, on the fifteenth day of the first month; on the morrow after the passover the children of Israel went out with an high hand in the sight of all the Egyptians.

Analysis

The departure from Rameses 'in the first month, on the fifteenth day of the first month' marks Passover morning, the day after the lamb was slain and eaten. The exodus began 'with an high hand' (boldly, openly, defiantly) demonstrating that God's deliverance was public and unmistakable. The phrase 'in the sight of all the Egyptians' emphasizes that this was witnessed redemption, not secret escape. The Reformed doctrine of visible, public profession of faith finds precedent here—our redemption is not private but testified before the watching world.

Historical Context

The fifteenth day of the first month became Israel's independence day, commemorated annually at Passover. The bold daylight departure, after 430 years of slavery, demonstrated God's power over Egypt's gods and Pharaoh's authority. The public nature of the exodus meant Egypt witnessed their defeat and Israel's vindication. No one could later claim this deliverance was hidden or ambiguous.

1. How does public, witnessed deliverance strengthen faith and testimony?
2. What does leaving 'with a high hand' teach about confidence in God's salvation?
3. In what ways should Christian testimony be bold and public rather than private and hidden?
