

Numbers 33:38

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And Aaron the priest went up into mount Hor at the commandment of the LORD, and died there, in the fortieth year after the children of Israel were come out of the land of Egypt, in the first day of the fifth month.

Analysis

Aaron the priest went up into mount Hor at the commandment of the LORD, and died there—Aaron's death was divinely ordained, not accidental. The phrase at the commandment of the LORD (על-פי יהוה, 'al-pî YHWH, literally 'upon the mouth of Yahweh') indicates sovereign appointment. Aaron's time was complete.

The chronological marker—in the fortieth year after Exodus, the first day of the fifth month (about July/August)—gives precise dating. Aaron died five months before Israel crossed Jordan, having served as high priest for nearly 40 years. His exclusion from Canaan (like Moses') resulted from the rebellion at Meribah (20:12, 24). Even faithful servants face consequences for sin, yet God honored Aaron with a mountaintop death and mourning period (20:29).

Historical Context

Aaron was 123 years old (v. 39), having been consecrated as high priest at age 83 (Exodus 7:7). His death marked the end of the Exodus generation's leadership core. The fifth month (Av in the Hebrew calendar) became associated with tragedy—later, both temples were destroyed in this month.

Study Questions

1. What does it mean that Aaron died 'at the commandment of the LORD'—by divine appointment rather than chance?
2. How should we understand that faithful leaders like Aaron and Moses faced severe consequences (exclusion from Canaan) for their failures?
