

Numbers 34:8

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

From mount Hor ye shall point out your border unto the entrance of Hamath; and the goings forth of the border shall be to Zedad:

Analysis

From mount Hor ye shall point out your border unto the entrance of Hamath; and the goings out of the border shall be at Zedad—The northern boundary continues from Mount Hor inland to Lebo-Hamath (entrance/approach to Hamath), a strategic pass between Lebanon and Anti-Lebanon ranges, then to Zedad (possibly modern Sadad, northeast of Damascus).

Hamath was Aramean/Syrian kingdom; 'entrance of Hamath' marked where Israelite territory ended and foreign kingdoms began. David and Solomon both reached this boundary (2 Samuel 8:9; 1 Kings 8:65), representing Israel's fullest extent. The precision shows God's covenant specificity: not vague 'from sea to sea,' but exact landmarks. This teaches that God's promises, while certain, have defined scope. We must neither diminish them through unbelief nor inflate them through presumption.

Historical Context

Lebo-Hamath (modern Lebweh or the Beqaa Valley entrance) controlled access between Mesopotamia and Egypt/Palestine. It appears throughout OT as Israel's ideal northern limit (Numbers 13:21; Joshua 13:5; Judges 3:3; 1 Kings 8:65). During divided kingdom era, northern border rarely reached this far, showing incomplete conquest fulfillment.

Study Questions

1. How do unfulfilled aspects of God's promises (like Israel's incomplete conquest) inform expectations of NT promises' fulfillment?
2. What does the 'entrance of Hamath' as boundary marker teach about strategic thinking in spiritual warfare and territory claiming?
