

Numbers 36:5

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And Moses commanded the children of Israel according to the word of the LORD, saying, The tribe of the sons of Joseph hath said well.

Analysis

Moses' command 'according to the word of the LORD' establishes that the solution comes from divine wisdom, not human compromise. The verdict that Zelophehad's daughters may marry whom they wish 'only to the family of the tribe of their father' balances their individual freedom with tribal integrity. They have both rights (to inherit, to choose husbands) and responsibilities (to preserve tribal boundaries). This teaches that biblical freedom is not absolute autonomy but liberty within the framework of covenant community. The Reformed understanding of liberty as freedom for righteousness, not license for selfishness, is illustrated.

Historical Context

This ruling refined the earlier decision (Numbers 27) without overturning it. The daughters maintained inheritance rights but with a condition that protected tribal integrity. This balance demonstrated that God's justice considers both individual and corporate dimensions. The solution satisfied both concerns—family continuity and tribal stability.
