

Numbers 4:20

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

But they shall not go in to see when the holy things are covered, lest they die.

Analysis

The prohibition 'they shall not go in to see when the holy things are covered, lest they die' establishes boundaries around divine mysteries. The Hebrew bala (when...are being covered) indicates even momentary glimpsing brought death. This teaches that God reveals only what He chooses; presumptuous curiosity about divine secrets is deadly. The severity underscores human finitude before infinite holiness. New Testament revelation unveils what was hidden (Ephesians 3:3-5), but only at God's appointed time and through His appointed means.

Historical Context

This command prevented Kohathites from satisfying curiosity about the sacred objects they transported but could never use. They carried the ark containing the law they were not priests to administer. This illustrates the veil that stood between God and man until Christ rent it (Matthew 27:51).
