

Philippians 1:26

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

That your rejoicing may be more abundant in Jesus Christ for me by my coming to you again.

Analysis

That your rejoicing may be more abundant in Jesus Christ for me by my coming to you again (ἴνα τὸ καύχημα ὑμῶν περισσεύῃ ἐν Χριστῷ Ἰησοῦ ἐν ἐμοὶ διὰ τῆς ἐμῆς παρουσίας πάλιν πρὸς ὑμᾶς, hina to kauchēma hymōn perisseuē en Christō Iēsou en emoi dia tēs emēs parousias palin pros hymas)—Kauchēma ("boasting, rejoicing, ground of confidence") can be positive (boasting in the Lord) or negative (fleshly boasting). Here it's positive: the Philippians' joy in Christ will overflow (perisseuē) at Paul's return.

The phrase in Jesus Christ (ἐν Χριστῷ Ἰησοῦ, en Christō Iēsou) qualifies the rejoicing—Christ-centered, not man-centered. For me (ἐν ἐμοί, en emoi) means "on my account" or "because of me." Paul's release and return would demonstrate God's faithfulness and answer to prayer (1:19), prompting Christ-focused celebration. Parousia ("presence, coming") here refers to Paul's arrival, but the word's eschatological overtones (used of Christ's return) remind readers that all earthly reunions are foretastes of the ultimate reunion.

Historical Context

Ancient letters often expressed hope for reunion. Paul's expected visit would reverse the sorrow of his imprisonment and absence. The Philippians' financial support and prayer for his release (1:19) created anticipation for his return. Reunions after dangerous travels or imprisonments were occasions for celebration and thanksgiving in ancient Mediterranean culture.
