

Proverbs 1:33

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

But whoso hearkeneth unto me shall dwell safely, and shall be quiet from fear of evil.

Analysis

Security rests not in circumstances but in covenant relationship with God. The one who heeds wisdom 'shall dwell safely' (Hebrew 'betach'), the same word used for trusting God. This security encompasses both temporal protection and eternal salvation, both gifts of sovereign grace, not earned rewards.

Historical Context

In ancient Israel's volatile political environment, security was precious and uncertain. Solomon promises a peace that transcends external threats, grounded in obedience to divine wisdom.
