

Proverbs 10:21

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

The lips of the righteous feed many: but fools die for want of wisdom.

Analysis

The lips of the righteous feed many, but fools die for want of wisdom. Righteous speech provides spiritual nourishment benefiting many; fools perish from lack of understanding. The verb 'feed' (ra'ah - shepherd, pasture) suggests righteous persons pastor others through godly speech. In contrast, fools don't merely lack wisdom but die for want of it - ignorance is fatal. This establishes both the value of godly teaching and the danger of remaining foolish.

Historical Context

Reflects covenant community where wise elders taught younger generations, providing spiritual sustenance through instruction. Lack of such teaching left people vulnerable to spiritual and practical ruin.
