

Proverbs 11:23

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

The desire of the righteous is only good: but the expectation of the wicked is wrath.

Analysis

The desire of the righteous is only good, but the expectation of the wicked is wrath. What the righteous desire is exclusively good - their wants are rightly ordered. What the wicked expect (qatsooh - hope, expectation) is actually wrath - though they expect good, judgment awaits. This verse contrasts righteous desires rightly anticipating blessing with wicked expectations falsely anticipating good while heading toward wrath.

Historical Context

Reflects biblical theology where the righteous rightly hope for blessing while the wicked wrongly expect to escape judgment. Ultimate outcomes will confirm righteous hope and expose wicked delusion.
