

Proverbs 13:16

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Every prudent man dealeth with knowledge: but a fool layeth open his folly.

Analysis

This proverb contrasts prudent wisdom with foolish naivety. "Every prudent man dealeth with knowledge" describes the wise person's modus operandi. Kol-arum ya'aseh veda'at (כָּל־עָרוּם יַעֲשֶׂה בְדַעַת, every shrewd one acts with knowledge). Arum (עָרוּם) means prudent, shrewd, sensible—someone who thinks before acting. They ya'aseh (יַעֲשֶׂה, act, do, make) according to da'at (דַּעַת, knowledge, discernment). Their actions are informed, calculated, wise.

"But a fool layeth open his folly" reveals the fool's self-exposure. Ukh'sil yifrosh ivvelet (וְכָסִיל יִפְרֹשׁ אִוְלֵת, but a fool spreads foolishness). Kesil (כָּסִיל, fool) yifrosh (יִפְרֹשׁ, spreads out, displays, unfolds) his ivvelet (אִוְלֵת, folly, foolishness). While the wise carefully apply knowledge, the fool broadcasts ignorance.

The proverb teaches discretion versus display. Prudent people think before speaking and acting, ensuring their behavior reflects knowledge. Fools act impulsively, revealing their folly to all. Proverbs 12:23 says: "A prudent man concealeth knowledge: but the heart of fools proclaimeth foolishness." Jesus exemplified prudence, knowing when to speak and when to remain silent (Matthew 26:63). James commands being "swift to hear, slow to speak" (James 1:19). The Spirit produces self-control (Galatians 5:22-23), enabling believers to act with knowledge rather than laying open folly.

Historical Context

Ancient Near Eastern wisdom valued discretion, especially in royal courts and diplomatic contexts. Prudent advisors carefully considered counsel before speaking. Fools spoke rashly, exposing ignorance and causing problems. Proverbs was compiled partly to train young men in courtly wisdom—how to navigate complex social situations with prudence rather than foolishly revealing inadequacy.

Study Questions

1. Do you tend to act with knowledge (thinking before speaking/acting) or lay open your folly through impulsive behavior?
2. In what situations are you most tempted to speak or act without adequate knowledge or consideration?
3. How can cultivating the Spirit's fruit of self-control (Galatians 5:22-23) help you become more prudent in your dealings?
