

Proverbs 13:4

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

The soul of the sluggard desireth, and hath nothing: but the soul of the diligent shall be made fat.

Analysis

The soul of the sluggard desires and has nothing, but the soul of the diligent shall be made fat. The slothful person wants without working; the diligent worker receives abundance. Desire without effort produces nothing; desire with diligence produces plenty. This verse refutes entitlement mentality, insisting that outcomes require effort. Wishing doesn't create reality; labor does. Diligence is rewarded; sloth is punished by want.

Historical Context

Agricultural society made the principle self-evident - crops required planting, tending, and harvest. Wanting harvest without labor was delusional. The principle extends to all vocations.
