

Proverbs 16:20

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

He that handleth a matter wisely shall find good: and whoso trusteth in the LORD, happy is he.

Analysis

Handling matters wisely finds good, but trusting the LORD brings blessedness. This distinguishes prudence from faith—both are necessary, but blessing flows ultimately from dependence on God, not mere competence. Happy is the one whose trust rests in the LORD, not personal wisdom.

Historical Context

The wisdom tradition valued skillful living, but biblical wisdom always subordinated human ability to divine providence. Unlike pagan wisdom, Israel's sages pointed beyond technique to trust in Yahweh.

1. How do you balance using wisdom while ultimately trusting God's provision?
2. Where are you tempted to trust your handling of matters rather than trusting the LORD?
