

Proverbs 17:14

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

The beginning of strife is as when one letteth out water:
therefore leave off contention, before it be meddled with.

Analysis

The beginning of strife is as when one letteth out water: therefore leave off contention, before it be meddled with. Poter mayim reshit madon (פּוֹתֵר מִים רֵאשִׁית מַדּוֹן, releasing water is the beginning of strife). Like breaching a dam, once strife starts it's unstoppable. Velifney hitgalle hariv netosh (וְלֹפֶנִי הַתְּגַלֵּעַ קָרֵיב נְטוֹשׁ) (so, before the quarrel breaks out, leave off). Abandon contentions before they escalate uncontrollably. The proverb urges conflict prevention—once unleashed, strife floods destructively. Jesus blessed peacemakers (Matthew 5:9). Paul commanded pursuing peace (Romans 14:19, Hebrews 12:14).

Historical Context

Ancient irrigation systems used dams and channels. Once breached, water flooded uncontrollably, destroying crops and property. Similarly, unchecked strife escalated into feuds, violence, community division. Biblical examples include Abraham peacefully separating from Lot to prevent strife (Genesis 13:8-9), versus Absalom's revolt that flooded Israel with civil war (2 Samuel 15-18). Wise people prevented strife's beginning; fools let it flood.
