

Proverbs 18:4

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

The words of a man's mouth are as deep waters, and the wellspring of wisdom as a flowing brook.

Analysis

A person's words can be 'deep waters' and 'a flowing brook' of wisdom. The Hebrew 'mayim amaq' (deep waters) suggests profundity and hidden resources. The 'wellspring of wisdom' (Hebrew 'maqor chokmah') flows forth as a brook (Hebrew 'nachal'—stream/torrent). This describes speech rich with insight, nourishing to hearers. Jesus promised that believers would have rivers of living water flowing from within (John 7:38-39)—the Holy Spirit producing wisdom. Reformed theology emphasizes Word and Spirit working together to produce wise speech that edifies the church.

Historical Context

In arid Palestine, springs and flowing brooks were precious resources providing life. Using this imagery for wise speech emphasizes its life-giving, refreshing, essential nature in the community.
