

Proverbs 19:26

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

He that wasteth his father, and chaseth away his mother, is a son that causeth shame, and bringeth reproach.

Analysis

This verse condemns the son who violates the fifth commandment through violence or expulsion of parents. 'Wasteth' and 'chaseth away' depict active cruelty—plundering a father's resources and driving away a mother. Such behavior brings 'shame and reproach'—public disgrace that reveals profound moral bankruptcy. The one who should honor and care for aging parents instead treats them as obstacles or resources to exploit. This represents covenant-breaking at the most fundamental level, violating both natural law and divine command. Such wickedness demonstrates a heart alienated from God, for how can one claim to love the invisible God while despising visible parents who gave him life?

Historical Context

Israelite law mandated severe penalties (death) for striking or cursing parents (Exodus 21:15, 17). Caring for elderly parents was a sacred duty, and failure brought covenant curse.
